The TECHE Project

Stewards of the Bayou Teche National Paddle Trail

The Teche Ecology, Culture and History Education Project (TECHE), established in 2008, has grown into a nonprofit organization with more than 400 passionate members. Together, we continue to make Bayou Teche a healthier waterway for fishing, kayaking, canoeing, boating and even swimming.

Our TECHE Renaissance focuses on three ideas: ENRICH It (healthy waterway), EXPLORE It (get on the water) and EMBRACE It (trail town economies). Since 2008, our volunteers have removed over 60 tons of trash from Bayou Teche, renewing its beauty and improving its health. We continue to improve the overall ecological health and water quality of the 135-mile corridor, enhance travelers' experiences with facilities that ease access and navigation of the bayou, and celebrate Bayou Teche with personal experiences, programs and events.

In 2015, through a rigorous application process, our efforts paid off: Bayou Teche and the Lower Atchafalaya River were designated a National Water Trail—the only such named river in Louisiana! The expansion of water trails across the nation is vital to a sustainable future, not just for the environment, but for our communities and economy. Realizing we tend to take care of the things we experience, the Bayou Teche National Paddle Trail is now a catalyst for the conservation of our national waterways.

Roughly, distances between most trail towns range six-to-eight miles, ideal for a casual paddler. Experiencing our culture by boat enhances a visitor's experience, while our resident families and children can now return to this playground to reconnect to our heritage.

Bayou Teche National Paddle Trail

Culture & History

Bayou Teche has seen Civil War battles, yellow fever epidemics, slave auctions, steamboats, shipwrecks, great floods, fur trading and the rise of the sugar industry. The 135-mile-long waterway that was once the course of the Mississippi River 5,000 years ago holds all of these stories and more. The TECHE Project's Information Kiosks on the bayou bank in each trail town offer more information on local history, lore, foodways, music, native species and lots more.

Legend of the Snake

Have you heard the Bayou Teche legend of the snake? The Chitimacha Tribe of Louisiana tells the tale that many years ago there was a venomous snake so long that its size was measured in miles. Its head lay at Morgan City and its tail at St. Martinville. This snake had been an enemy of the Chitimacha, and one day the chief called his warriors together to prepare for battle. In lieu of guns, the Chitimacha used clubs and bows and arrows tipped with garfish teeth to fight the serpent. They fought courageously, but the snake turned and twisted for days to survive. Dying a slow death, the beast broadened, curved and deepened the place where its huge body lay. The winding curves of Bayou Teche are proof of the exact position the snake placed itself when overcome by Chitimacha warriors, and the word "Teche" in Chitimacha language means "snake."

Trail Tips & Safety

Please have fun and also remember to respect the waterway while using it!

- Some boat landings are in rural areas and not lit at night.
- Tell someone about your paddling plans before you leave.
- Always use personal flotation devices.
- Carry water, sunscreen and bug repellent.
- Check weather conditions and be aware of current water conditions and flood stages.
- You may encounter crawfish traps, crab traps, float lines and jig/jug lines in the water; respect and leave untouched this private property.
- Occasionally you will encounter motorboats; remember to turn your bow into the wake and stay to the right of the channel, especially in bayou bends.
- Park in designated areas, making sure not to block driveways or interfere with traffic.
- Always be courteous to other river users; follow the laws and rules of the area.
- Look after the natural environment; avoid damaging the bayou banks and vegetation.
- Protect native species and habitats.
- Keep Louisiana Beautiful! Don't litter, and please take a few minutes to pick up litter left by others. Remember to Leave No Trace.

Camping On or Near the Teche

While day trips are always an option, paddlers wanting to spend a little more time on the Teche have the option of camping overnight. Trail towns offer everything from primitive camping spots to RV parks and campgrounds with all the amenities, in addition to bed and breakfasts and homes for rent. Just remember to Leave No Trace before getting back on the trail when camping. You can also check Hip Camp and Harvest Hosts for private landowners along the Teche that allow camping.
